Over the past two-and-a-half years, GIN GA have developed an autonomous musical language with their driving drums, playful and fresh melodies and a wonderful lead voice. After some extensive touring in Europe and the US (2011/2012) the band released their previous single "Dancer" in fall 2012, which was played on radio stations all across Europe and went on to heavy rotation especially in Spain (radio & MTV), France, Poland and Austria.

The first half of 2013 was mostly spent in their recording studio, playing occasional live shows, which turned out to be a refreshing break from the strenuous work on the new album. This summer, GIN GA will be performing at some major European festivals, warming up for their album release in September and the following European Club Tour.

"Golden Boy" is the first single taken from the upcoming album. The song was recorded in London and Vienna produced by Alex Beitzke and Gin Ga. Charlie Russell, whose recent mix and production credits include Kasabian, Beady Eye, Δ (alt-J), Chapel Club and Jamiroquai took care of the final mix.
